Operator of America's Black Holocaust Museum

September 30, 2013

Dear Ms. Neese and Students,

Each year America's Black Holocaust Museum hosts 90,000 visitors from all over the United States and 180 other countries. They come to discover the stories about America's past that few people know. They come—not by car, bus or plane—but through their computers, because ABHM is the world's only completely online museum of African American history!

At ABHM, we are always looking for curators; we call them "griots," pronounced GREE-ohs, <http://www.abhmuseum.org/2012/02/griots-at-the-museum/>. Griots tell history in ways that make it easy and fun for kids and adults to learn.

ABHM is looking for young griots to curate exhibits for its newest Gallery, "Through One City's Eyes," about the part that Milwaukee played during the struggle for civil rights for African Americans from the 1800s until today.

We invite you to use your powers of discovery and imagination to curate these exhibits so that they are interesting, informative, and involving. Through your eyes, people around the world will learn important stories about Milwaukee and America.

Are you up for the challenge? If so, we look forward to seeing the physical exhibits you create and working with you to transform them for the worldwide web!

Sincerely,

Dr. Fran Kaplan
